Dedication

IN RECOGNITION of the untiring service he has rendered Durham High School for twenty-six years, in acknowledgment of the great work he has accomplished in the advancement of music in the school and community, in gratitude for the inspiration and training he has given so many boys and girls, and in thankfulness for the privilege we have experienced in association with him, we, the senior class of Durham High School, proudly dedicate the 1948 MESSENGER to

FOREWORD

From "that tower of strength which stood four-square to all the winds that blew" I have looked down on thousands of students who have passed through the portals of this institution of learning. Now, after twenty-five years of stately silence, from my vantage point, I want to bring to you my impression of a year at Durham High School—a dome's eye view, so to speak, of the activities, the students, the teachers, the classes, the athletics; in fact, all the many scenes that go on within these hallowed walls. The staff which has so carefully noted my impressions joins me in the hope that this book will bring to all who read it many treasured memories of happy days spent at Durham High.

English Department

Judging by the interest and activities undertaken in the English classrooms under the dome, my proteges are learning to express themselves correctly and honestly on subjects worthy of consideration; and are getting acquainted with the truth and beauty that a study of American and English literature offers to inquiring minds. To those students with time and talent, two electives: journalism and dramatics are offered, and I hope public speaking may be added next year.

Tuning in on a departmental meeting, I learned that in the standard tests on general development given to all students last semester, the rating in English was well above the national average. This gratifying news sent a thrill through my old frame.

First row: Mrs. Martha Patrick, Mrs. Violet Cook, Miss Marguerite M. Herr, Miss Frances Briggs.
Second row: Mrs. Mary Phillips, Miss Belle Hampton, Mrs. Mary Suitt Hall.

Math Department

"What s'matter, fella!" The moment I heard this familiar phrase, I knew one of "Pop" deBruyne's classes was in session. Through his wit and interest math courses have become popular at Durham High School. I have some of the best Math teachers in the profession, and under their attention the students are able to tackle any High School mathematical problem. No longer are radicals, imaginaries, and graphs terrors for my students, but rather they are fields for my students to explore. The days of math conquering students are gone, for now students in Durham High School willingly conquer math.

First row: Mrs. Loie Christie, Mrs. Natalie Green, Miss Madeline Farthing, Mr. James Shields.

Science Department

Although for many years I've gazed down on the scientific activities of Durham High, I'm more baffled than ever at the many experiments the students have made this year. I'll never know why the biology classes thrived on bisecting frogs and cutting up insects, or why Mr. Bell's chemistry students concocted those strange odors which wandered by me each day. I always sat on edge for fear they would blow me sky-high. The physics class under Mr. Bunting's direction did the oddest experiment with plain  $H_2O$ . What miracles these young scientists performed! Some day, I know, they will be famous and how proud I'll be!

Social Science Department

In the twenty-five years that I have spent looking over Durham High School, I have seen ideas formed that have set a higher level because of the silent, yet effective work of the Social Sciences. The aims of this department are: to teach significant facts in the field of history and allied subjects; to seek to establish a sane philosophy of life in our democracy; to strengthen the ability of all students to think logically, in order to form sane judgments; to inspire interest, coöperation, and harmonious relations among all Durham High School students.

Foreign Language Department

The foreign language students must have had oodles of fun this year, because quite often their laughter ripped the air. The youthful teachers of the romance languages, Mr. Barrett, and Miss Champion not only know their subject, but did an excellent job of putting it over.

Definitely not least important in this department was Latin, which was far from being a dead language at Durham High School. One had the great opportunity of taking four years of Latin, taught by two fine teachers, Mrs. Christie and Miss Michaels.

Miss Susie G. Michaels, Mrs. Loie C. Christie, Mr. Joseph Barrett, Miss Faye Champion.

Commercial Department

Through the years, I have seen the commercial department grow and improve. Business-like procedure dominates each class, creating in each commercial student the efficiency and training that he needs in the business world. The pupils seem to enjoy typing, taking dictation, and keeping books. The aim of the commercial department is to render service—to the student by teaching efficiency; to the community by training students; to business firms by promoting efficient office work; and to the school by working with each department.

Miss Ruth Cordle, Mrs. Maribelle Moore, Mr. John Deeds, Mrs. Ava Collins.

Vocational and Industrial Education Department

Every time I tried to get a little peace and quiet, a loud roar from the machine shop would inevitably disturb me. Operating the machines were student apprentices who eventually hope to qualify as journeymen and master. This course includes plan-reading, relative mathematics, relative science, and cam and gear developing—equivalent to a two year apprenticeship in industry.

A new course, under Mr. Bell, deals with the development, theory, and repair of radio equipment, and repair of household appliances. Mr. Palmer teaches the mechanical and architectural drawing courses, sheet metal pattern drawing, and woodshop.

Mr. H. K. Collins, Mr. Osear Palmer, Mr. Edward Bell

Music Department

Daily strains of choral and instrumental music came floating up to my ears, at just about any hour. The chorus, rated as one of the best in the state, mainly due to Mr. Twaddell's persevering work, and the band, directed by enthusiastic Mr. Enloe, are our pride and joy. I am highly honored to have such great men teaching below me. Their work has made Durham High School one of the best known schools of the state in music organizations. In all my years up here I have never heard of nor hope to hear of any better work than that of this, the 1948 Music Department of Durham High.

Mr. William P. Twaddell and Mr. Lewis Enloe.

Physical Education Department

One of my favorite divisions is the Physical Education department, centered around the big gym and athletic field. Mr. P. G. Sykes is in charge of this department, and is assisted by Coach Elmer Barbour, who replaced Kelley Mote this year. The boys' sports include football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming and tennis.

Miss Nell Leitner conducts all girls' sports. Her students enjoy basketball, softball, volleyball, tennis, and swimming.

In the many years which have passed the athletics program has always been a most valuable part of the school curriculum. I hope to see this department expand and achieve even more in the years to come.

Mr. Sykes, Mr. Brewbaker, Miss Leitner, Mr. Barbour.

MISS ELSIE SMITH

Art Department

Right under me is the Art Department, the big room on the third floor that was always overflowing with students who loved to paint and work. The art classes, under the direction of Miss Elsie Smith, made advertisements and performed odd art jobs for the school which were fun as well as profitable. The artists were an important part of the Hi-Rocket and MESSENGER staffs.

Then, of course, there were the regular classes of painting, drawing, inking, modeling, and studying famous artists. By the way, what do you think of modern art? Although it befuddles me completely, the art students seem to like it.

The Library

Standing my watch over this grand old institution I have seen the library grow into an invaluable part of Durham High School. This year under the direction of Miss Emily Loftin it celebrated during BOOK WEEK its twenty-fifth anniversary with the first formal broadcast from the high school auditorium. That afternoon parents, teachers, home room presidents, and Library Club members sipped tea and looked at some of the 400 new books and sixty-five periodicals that the students have enjoyed this year.

Coöperative Department

The Coöperative Department lays claim only to one subhead, that of the Coöperative Class. Year after year I've witnessed the graduation of hundreds of Co-öp alumni, and year after year, I've seen them occupy positions of merit in the community. This is evidence of the immense spirit of brotherhood found in this special class, offering opportunities of education plus part-time employment.

Indeed, Miss Maude F. Rogers, associate founder and present director, and "her boys" have long been and will remain an essential faction in the progress attributed to this structure which I crown.

MISS MAUDE ROGERS

MRS. LOUISE DOBBINS

Bible Department

An indispensable part of my school is the Bible Department headed by Mrs. Dobbins. More students than ever took the course in Bible this year. Through this course they furthered their spiritual life and their knowledge of the Bible.

Indeed, it was inspiring to watch the students as they studied something so worthwhile. This study of the Bible, which was apparently of great interest to them, is sure to remain a definite part of the students in the years to come.

MISS FRANCES WOOLWORTH
MRS. MARCIA WALTERS

Home Economics Department

I glanced down on my neighbor, the Home Economics Cottage, which is a center of many school activities. There the housewives and mothers of tomorrow learn the fundamentals of home making. A three year course is offered and included in this course are: Child Care, Clothing, Consumer Education, Food and Nutrition, Health, Housing and Home Furnishings, and Family Relationships. The one year course consists of a study of the fundamentals of cooking and sewing. Under the experienced guidance of the co-supervisors, Miss Frances Woolworth and Mrs. Marcia Walters, this department accomplished much.

Cafeteria

The wise always proceed with caution down the corridors after fourth and fifth periods, to avoid the mad rush of students heading toward Mrs. Llewellyn's delicious hot lunches. As for me, I like to peek over the school and watch the pupils buying their lunches in the cold lunch line. Digging deep in their pockets with one hand and expertly holding in the other a sandwich, a cake, a cup of ice cream, and a package of crackers, with their free fingers desperately clutching a bottle of cold milk; they still manage to draw out the money to pay the outstretched hand of the cashier.

Class Flower: Carnation

For me, there is nothing quite so sad as having to bid the seniors adieux. I shall miss their familiar faces, their gay escapades, and the sportsmanship which they have shown throughout the years.

I watched these girls and boys when they first entered the building one rainy morning in September 1945. Immediately I thought to myself that this new class would certainly be one to watch. And I was right; the energetic way they started their sophomore year by participating in dramas, in athletics, and on the staffs of the publications left me agape. A sophomore social, the first held in some time, climaxed the year and its social activities.

I never had quite so much fun as I did at the junior-senior prom in 1947. These lads and lassies put on one of the biggest, best, and gayest proms that I can recall. And "Pride and Prejudice" was a marvelous Senior Play. Such romance!

It seems as though the seniors have topped all their records this year by virtue of their splendid leadership and guidance as an active part of the student council and assembly, clubs, societies, and the school as a whole.

Junior Class

Seated: M. Boothe, D. Uzzle, F. Stafford. Standing: D. Richardson.

Class Colors: Red and White

Motto: Ad astra per aspera—"To the stars through hope."

This year's Junior Class was well settled because they had become organized last year under the newly instituted student government. Now they really have their bearings and have made a good showing in school activities for these past two years. Members of this class have taken responsibilities in publications, clubs, societies, and miscellaneous class activities.

Last fall a little over half of the class voted for an imitation ruby to replace the school seal in their class rings. This set was made available to them, but most of them still ordered the traditional ring.

Early spring brought all discoverable talent to tryouts for the Student Talent Show which was a big success. It made me sit up straighter to realize what a wonderful mass of talent I had the privilege of constantly watching.

Then there was the night of April 30 when I witnessed the very beautiful Junior-Senior Prom sponsored by this class and paid for by proceeds from the Talent Show. Soft lights shone on multi-colored dresses, while dreamy-eyed couples danced to sweet and swing music.

All in all, the Junior class had a pleasant year; so I hope they will return ready to take their leading roles as the Seniors of 1949.

Sophomore Class

Seated: J. Murdock, N. Rinaldi, D. L. Jacobs. Standing: A. Long.

It is always inspiring to watch the new students arrive in the fall. I had the pleasure of welcoming another lively group to the sophomore class last September, and I can already tell the calibre of these young people. This class is destined to leave behind a most impressive record, I believe.

The sophomores chose as their leaders: President, Norman Rinaldi; Vice-President, Albert Long, Jr.; Secretary, Judy Murdock; and Treasurer, Donnie Lou Jacobs. This new class boasted many promising athletes in every sport. Class members took active parts in assembly programs, on the Hi-Rocket and MESSENGER staffs, and all other school projects. The sophomore class officers, home room presidents, and committee members took their places in the student government and fulfilled their jobs well.

For the first time in sophomore history, a class song was written. Forward Ever, Backward Never was the motto selected by the class; and the colors, blue and white, will be representative of the 1950 seniors.

You will find in years to come these fine and upstanding boys and girls in successful walks of life. May this account serve as an official reminder of the sparkling participation of this group while they were sophomores at Durham High School.

Four Hundred and Sixty-Two! That, my dears, is a record—a record number of sales of athletic tickets posted by the Coöperative Class as it began another successful year under the never-failing leadership of its director, Miss Maude F. Rogers. This was only the first in a series of worth-while projects paced by the Coöps. The Community Chest, Red Cross, and Christmas Seal drives were backed with a warm spirit of contribution.

Probably the biggest occasion of the Coöp school year was the annual fall social given at the Forest Hills Club House last Halloween. I wasn't there but word got around that the evening's entertainment, a womanless wedding and an old fashioned melodrama, was so well received that it was presented to the student body at a later date.

The trip to Williamsburg, Virginia stands out in the memories of all the Coöps as being the chief social event of the spring. Also, a certain outing sponsored by the Coöperative Class Alumni Club, big brothers of the fellows now in Room 217, is not forgotten.

I've been sitting on top of Durham High School for a good many years, and in every one of those years I've had the pleasure of seeing every class which calls itself "Coöperative" live up to this name, and this year's class is no exception.

Beginning with the orientation week for sophomores, the Student Council showed a great deal of promise for an exciting and well-planned school year. The qualified chairmen of the six standing committees outlined their plans for two busy semesters, and under their supervision the committees operated with very effective results.

Gazing down into the council room I saw this nucleus of our democratic school government as it sat discussing the handbook, which was the pride of the group. They worked diligently through the summer months to produce an informative, pocket-sized handbook for all Durham High students.

At the council's suggestion secretaries of all clubs and societies met to receive pointers on parliamentary procedure. The results of these meetings soon bore fruit when these organizations worked in greater co-operation with the council.

The "girl-take, girl-break" Christmas dance, sponsored by the council, was one of the most mirthful events of the year. In May I witnessed a gala spring dance which climaxed the year's social activities. They also supervised a community sing and introduced plans to show free movies after school in the auditorium.

For many years I have seen two organizations really work in Durham High School. Of course I mean the MESSENGER and the Hi-Rocket groups.

The news of the school and its activities are published in the school paper, under the direction of Miss Marguerite Herr. This year the Hi-Rocket was rated as a medalist paper at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association in New York City on March 12, 1948. Congratulations, Hi-Rocket staff.

The MESSENGER has a big responsibility as the events and outstanding activities of the school must be organized into a chronicle for the benefit of "High School Days" memories. This task has been accomplished many years through the council of interested teachers and the efforts of students. The 1947 MESSENGER received a first rating with the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, under the supervision of Miss Mary Jane Edwards. Miss Elsie Smith advised the annual this year.

After observing for twenty-five years the growth of these two essential parts of Durham High School, I assure you that we could not do without either of them.

Medalist honors from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, previously received for ten consecutive years, came back to the Hi-Rocket in 1948 after two years of first place standing.

Post-war conditions had hampered but had not been able to balk the staff members as they worked to make their twelve issues meet their high standards established during twenty-eight years of publication and service to the school and the community.

Mindful of Miss Herr's maxims and advice, the news and literary workers aimed accurately to cover school and local news and to select students' outstanding literary efforts for printing. Businessmen, directed by "Pop" deBruyne handled advertising contracts and layouts. Then the circulation department distributed the finished product.

As president of the C.S.P.A. Advisers Association, Miss Herr presided over and directed the meetings of that organization, whose 900 members maintain the standards of participating student newspapers. Student delegates from Durham High to the New York convention were: Barbara Maughan, Anne Bolich, Nancy Rose Green, Mickey Kaplan, Agnes Hamblen, Pat Bostick, Shirley Jones, Anne Williams, Donnie Lou Jacobs, Warren Bishop, Tommy Brame, Joe Hurd, and Jack Cowan.

Not very far below me, sounds like these frequently pierced through the third floor ceiling:

“Oh sigh! Oh moan! Oh sob! Nothing but trouble! I’ve lost another club write-up. Hasn’t anybody seen the classroom pictures? Dickie and Doris, are all those identifications finished? Mary, did you leave your dummy at home again today? Say, Don, guess what! No one has taken those Girls’ Athletic Association pictures yet! Listen, Mary Nell, there just isn’t one nice thing I can say about that department. I loath that subject with a passion. You’ll just have to get someone else to do it. Give me the football team or something interesting! Somebody, help! Miss Rhodes’ camera has turned over again. If this wind keeps playing havoc with the picture-taking, it looks very much like the Art Department will have the job of drawing caricatures of everybody for this yearbook. Oh, Miss Smith, what can we do? The key to the MESSENGER Room is lost.”

At the very last minute the only thing that they still lacked was a tag line for this paragraph.

I would like to have attended each and every meeting of the O. Henry Literary Society if it could have been made possible. That group had a very rare disease, the "energetic malady." Each member organized and presented a program on numerous and varied subjects. They strove to promote the idea of individual participation, to establish a love for literary arts among the members, and to aid the girls in discovering their talents and learning to use them. It really did me good to see such an active organization as theirs.

The Walter Hines Page Literary Society concluded another active year as one of my oldest and finest associates at Durham High School. During the year, I observed that the Pageites under the supervision of their advisor, Miss Marguerite M. Herr, fulfilled their purpose by stressing upon their members self-reliance, dependability, and a spirit of loyalty and cooperation.

Depending largely on the talent of the members, the programs for the year were highlighted by instrumental duets, declamations, and dramatic skits. One program was devoted wholly to parliamentary procedure, and another to presenting and discussing the club constitution.

The Page Society also upheld its two long-standing traditions, the annual banquet, and the presentation of the Page Cup. The decorations, program, and music for the banquet, held April 27 in the school cafeteria, were in the complete charge of the members. On the annual awards day the Page Cup was awarded to the senior member who was of the most service to the society. His name was engraved on the trophy, which remains in the school as an inspiration to the future members.

"What is your literary society?" "Why, Spencer!" "And yours?" "Spencer, of course." Goodness! Nearly everyone I asked seemed to belong to the Cornelia Spencer Literary Society. I've been told that it is the oldest club of its kind in Durham High, and it was easy to see that its tremendous size warranted their meeting in the auditorium.

Through the year, programs centered around music, art, literature, and other phases of the fine arts. One meeting was set aside for a study of the history and origin of the club and some facts about Cornelia Spencer. Guest speakers talked to the society on some occasions. Their programs not only added to the educational interests of many girls, but the group was active in other worth-while functions illustrated by their gift of ten dollars to the Empty Stocking Fund during the Christmas season. Spencer girls have also established a tradition for good entertainment. Their "taeky party" was a sensation and their spring banquet looked very inviting. Their good work was advised by Mrs. Martha Patriek during the first semester and Mrs. Alice Stalzer, who took her place, during the second semester.

I peeped through a door, one gloomy Thursday, and I was greatly enlightened by the active group of boys that I saw assembled. The occasion was one of the bi-monthly meetings of the Carmichael Literary Society.

After the usual business was over, and the program began, I realized the purpose of such an organization. This club was helping to promote knowledge of the finer arts, through the medium of literature. Their calendar for the school year was as follows:

November: Organization of club; Quiz program, and Band concert.
 December: Speeches; Christmas program.
 January: Guest speakers; social.
 February: Skit and vocal musical program.
 March: Debate; contest.
 April: Band concert; guest speakers.
 May: Spring social; election of officers for '48-49.

While making my general check-up of activities in Durham High School, I looked in on a Brogden Literary Society meeting. This organization was composed of members that didn't mind working. I am sure they made all of their members feel proud of their progress in carrying out the purposes of the society. This group of girls should now be well-informed young ladies after developing their talents and abilities for a year. Having been their observer for many years, I give them my admiration and predict that this organization will continue to meet with success.

This literary society was grieved this year by the passing away of Mrs. Lila Markham Brogden, for whom the society was named. She was greatly missed in the presentation of the medal to the most outstanding girl in the group and the other activities in which she had always taken a part. Her loyalty, integrity, and complete devotion to the good way of life has served and will continue to serve as a living example to the members of the Lila Markham Brogden Literary Society.

The works of Eugene Field, Sidney Lanier, and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow highlighted the programs of the Athena Literary Society this year. I liked those programs on poetry. "A Moonbeam floateth from the skies, . . ." Gee, I'm getting as poetic as the Athenians.

Mona Boothe's literary quizzes, of the radio script variety, always brought laughter floating up to me. The pay-offs for those were in peanuts and what a lot of them were won—and lost. Sometimes the consequences seemed to be more beneficial than the truth. Anyway that got the most laughs.

The Christmas party involved an hour of reading beautiful Christmas literature. The Athenians will long remember the simple and impressive stories of "The Match Girl," "Why the Chimes Rang," and "Blind Barti-meus." The members of the society agree with me that the old and used Christmas literature makes the very nicest listening of all.

This society finished a successful year with a series of outside speakers. Each member should now have a broader knowledge of the poems of literature, the various types of literature, and an appreciation of literature. Indeed, it was easy to attain such purposes as these in an atmosphere of higher learning such as theirs.

I learned that this society was trying to promote public speaking and that it was striving to familiarize the members with many of the famous works of literature. Numerous debates and quizzes, also, were given in order to increase the knowledge of the students concerning world affairs.

Although it was small, I realized that the Southgate Literary Society was an enthusiastic organization. This group stressed the importance of debates and readings in each of their meetings. Often their debates were on timely subjects as: resolved: "that pupils of Durham High should not date on week nights," or resolved: "that high school students should not 'go steady' while in school." At the Christmas meeting, Miss Belle Hampton read several selections from the book "Fireside Christmas Stories." A highlight of the year was their spring banquet held at the Jefferson Cafeteria.

The Blackwell Literary Society boys succeeded this year in carrying out their purpose which was to set high standards in school citizenship, to have programs beneficial to the education of each member, and to develop clean habits and traits among the boys.

The society had a year of excellent programs including guest speakers, book reviews, and a movie. The social activity was rounded out by a party given in the spring.

An outstanding feature of the club was the eager way in which the students participated voluntarily, taking all responsibilities for the success of the programs. Such co-operation is indeed commendable.

Whenever I felt the need of a bit of culture I eavesdropped on the Tillett Literary Society. This small group prepared quizzes, debates, and discussions on topics of interest to each member of the club. Their thoroughly interesting programs had self-expression for a theme. The Tillett girls tried to promote fellowship among the students as well as provide several social functions for the enjoyment of the members. Indeed, an organization such as this should long remain a part of Durham High School.

It would be difficult for me to name any group that has accomplished any more than the Mummers Dramatics Club has this year. The co-vice-presidents of this club planned a complete year of different, informative, and outstanding programs. The Mummers introduced the new plan of having two representatives from each class to help plan and carry out the programs. In this way each member was given a chance to perform at a meeting.

Among the topics, which were thoroughly discussed by competent speakers, were: play-writing, play-directing, play-producing, play-casting, and costuming.

A colorful minstrel show was presented by the club in the early spring. Also highlighting the spring semester was an informal dance, which I was informed was quite a successful affair. I hope to see the Mummers continue to live up to their excellent reputation in the years to come.

Even from my inaccessible perch I heard about the Playmakers Dramatics Club. Upon inquiry, I learned that the organization was unique in having not one, but two capable advisers, Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Hall. And when I saw the vast array of names on the roll, I no longer had any doubts that the Playmakers was the largest club in the school. I first realized that the group accomplished great things when I saw their one-act play "Who Gets the Car Tonight." Talk of their programs, talent shows, discussion of plays, and unusual socials also impressed me. Their members gained valuable experience from the meetings by participating in public speaking, entertaining plays, original stunts, and informative programs. Seeing the boys and girls working so busily, it was my hope that the coming years might prove as successful as the present one, and that their established tradition would carry on as long as I sit on top of Durham High School.

As I was looking down from my nook one activity period, a small, active group of boys and girls in room 215 drew my attention. It was the Mimics Dramatics Club, a group promoting play-writing. I learned that two plays had been written and presented, showing the ability of the members not only in writing, but also in acting and producing. Critics were invited to judge these plays and to speak on play-writing.

The organization conducted all their meetings in an orderly manner, according to Roberts' Rules of Order.

The Mimics Dramatics Club was comparatively small in number, but truly great in ability.

Library Club

During the twenty-five years that the library has been beneath me I have listened in on many interesting meetings of one of the most active clubs in school. With Miss Loftin, adviser, members have constantly been working to improve the club and the services they render. Outstanding events of the year included a radio broadcast and a tea presented in connection with the twenty-fifth anniversary of the library, and the organization of a state high school library club. A constitution prepared by the members of the local club was used as the basis for the state organization's constitution.

Hark! Were they the herald angels singing? No, after many pleasant years of listening to this talented group, I knew that the heavenly music which wafted upward could be none other than the work of the Mixed Chorus. Under the very competent direction of Mr. W. P. Twaddell, the chorus improved more and more each week. If I remember correctly, these students gave an excellent performance at their fall concert. This was followed by a most impressive program of Christmas music given in collaboration with the Christmas pageant. And, as always, the Durham High Chorus participated in the city school's annual Christmas concert, which received city-wide acclaim. The last semester was highlighted by a spring concert in April. Just previous to that concert, the chorus sang in the state-wide music festival in Greensboro. The chorus gave splendid performances on both of these occasions, as they have done for years, under the great maestro, Mr. Twaddell.

Even an old dove likes to keep up with current happenings of this weary world, so two Thursdays a month I peeped in on the Current Events Club's meeting and brought myself up-to-date.

Instead of answering "Here," to roll call, each member answered with a bit of current news. By the time Charles Dilts, the club's secretary, had finished calling the roll I felt like a scholar. Following this, Baxter Mangum always had an interesting and timely program.

This club kept clearly in mind its aim of keeping up with world happenings in all fields and of promoting the art of speech-making and debating. The members of "Ma" Gholson's club not only kept up with world happenings but also played a leading role in dear old Durham High School's current events.

Durham High School members of the national organization, Future Homemakers, have contributed much of their time, efforts, and talents toward many worthy projects. The girls sent three Christmas boxes of fifty-six pounds to Holland for the Christmas World Festival, gave money to the Empty Stocking Fund, hemmed 200 towels for Poland, and adopted a Home Economics School in Germany.

The group planned a fashion show and selected from it a representative to go to the Raleigh show. The climax of all their activities was the student planned mother-daughter banquet given in May.

Fame of the Hi-Y organization had long ago reached such heights that even I had heard of their many worth-while activities. This year I learned that so many interested boys turned out it was necessary to separate them into two groups, according to their class in school. However, both sections worked on the same general plan and took part in the same functions. The Sophomores' Hi-Y was no different from the older group in that their aim was to create, maintain and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community.

Mr. S. A. Holt, advisor, was proud of the work accomplished this year. The boys combined with the older group, visited a different church each month, gave two baskets of food to needy families monthly, aided in collecting money for the Christmas toy fund, and helped raise money for school benefits. Several social events and good weekly programs were prominent in addition to their outside work. Such a tie between education and Christian Character is a necessary and welcome addition to school life.

By squinting just a bit I saw that those pins and emblems a lot of boys were wearing indicated that they were members of the Hi-Y. I soon found out that the Hi-Y boys tried to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community.

I heard their advisor, Mr. S. A. Holt, say that he was happy to have had such a swell group of boys this year, and that they had accomplished quite a bit. They visited a different church each month, gave two baskets of food to needy families monthly, aided in collecting money for the Christmas toy fund, sent delegates to the State Hi-Y conference in Wilmington, and helped raise money for school benefits. All of this activity was in addition to the outstanding programs given at their weekly meetings. But "all work and no play makes Jaek a dull boy," so the Hi-Y found time to give several cabin parties and dances. Because of their well-rounded program, the Hi-Y completed another successful year as an important part of Durham High.

Early one morning I was awakened by excited exclamations which were being emitted from the cafeteria. Upon further investigation I discovered that the student directors of the Junior Needlework Guild were arranging the annual display of baby garments.

This organization was founded by five local girls in 1931 to help the Durham branch of the Needlework Guild supply clothes for the underprivileged children of the city. The girls have done a magnificent job this year. The three hundred members, with Barbara Maughan as their president, collected 536 garments this year along with the money raised for the shoe fund.

Those directors really did a fine job! Each of the twenty-five directors collected two garments from each of the eleven girls in her circle. Next they marked the clothes so that they might be added to the city-wide display. In recognition of their service, the directors were awarded gold letter certificates on awards day.

Year after year I have seen these girls working cheerfully to help their needy neighbors, and it makes me want to stretch myself a little higher to know that the Durham High girls help in such worthy projects.

I enjoyed eavesdropping on the French Club, for their programs were very colorful. This year, under the direction of that new, sensational, French teacher, Mr. Barrett, the club carried out its purpose of speaking and reading French as much as possible during the meetings. The minutes and the roll were read "en francais." Also the programs, including prayers, poems, and proverbs were carried on in that romantic language. Now, even I yearn to visit gai Paris someday, having learned so much about it.

I had no doubts about the business status of the future after listening in on a meeting of the Future Business Leaders of America. They learned many kinds of business transactions, and planned for their future position. Many of them excelled in typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping.

Durham High is the only high school in North Carolina which has a chapter of this national organization. This group of young people gave an appearance of conscientious preparation for tomorrow's world, their world.

Judging from the noise which came from the chemistry room every other week, I knew that the Phy-Chem Club never had one dull moment. This group was made up of my young scientists, who may some day astound the world with their discoveries and inventions.

Their programs centered around the purpose of the club, which was to help increase the knowledge of science. Guest speakers helped them to achieve this purpose, while the club members, themselves, worked to do so. A project was completed and reported by each student. Some of these projects dealt with radio, photography, color, sound, and how to determine the weather.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." (II Timothy 2:15). I heard the purpose of the Bible Club this year was to learn more about the contents of the "Great Book" and to engage more people in its study.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Dobbins, the Bible Club carried out several interesting and helpful projects this school year, such as: sending Christmas bundles to the unfortunate peoples of Europe, distributing devotional bulletins throughout the school, visiting Duke University Chapel, enlisting students for the Bible classes, and selling fudge to enlarge their treasury. Various programs, contests, and visiting speakers made their meetings interesting and profitable.

Through the Bible Club, I think my students helped to forward the work of advancing Christ's Kingdom.

It would seem as though keeping up with the young talented artists of Durham High would have been an easy job, considering the art room is so near me. However, it was still quite difficult to do so, because they were such an active group.

Their club meetings were highlighted by numerous visits to art displays, and exhibits in Durham and at Duke University. The history of art and its many techniques were subjects which held a great attraction for this gifted group, but I must confess these topics were a little too steep for me.

The aid of the Art Club was invaluable in making decorations for many social events of the school, the local churches, and the community. Under the supervision of Miss Elsie Smith, this club, which talks through the use of its paint brushes, proved itself to be most worthy of all praise which was sent its way.

"Hold it. Click." Those were familiar sounds to my ears. Twice each month I would look in on a meeting of the Camera Club, which met with Mr. Glenn Bunting. The club not only learned about picture taking techniques, but also about the processes for developing pictures. Gee, I never knew there were so many parts to a camera. How do they understand all the complicated equipment? I must say "more power to them," our photographers of tomorrow.

Every year I look forward to the season of—you guessed it—football. This year the team really worked hard and the results were mighty good. Spirit ran high in the school and during the pep rallies I felt as if I would fall from my perch.

I hate to see co-captains Bobby Poe and Gene Brooks, also lettermen Dwight Carden, Orion Hammett, and Baxter Mangum leave us this year. They are a fine bunch of boys and have served their alma mater well.

Basketball

First row: P. Hunt, C. Bennette, G. Brooks, B. Tally, J. Hamilton, R. Craig, B. Poe, J. Moore, B. Holt, A. Long, T. Williamson. Center: Manager, G. Fornes.

Well, my boys did pretty well in basketball this year, even though they didn't win all their games. A record of eight conference wins and two victories over teams outside of the conference helps to explain what a fine quint they were. The bulldogs were topped only three times in league play.

Most of the games were real thrillers, especially the two games with Durham High's arch-rivals, the Raleigh Capitals. We won both of these games by the very close scores of 38 to 36 and 42 to 41.

Pat Hunt and Troy Williamson made excellent co-captains, working in perfect harmony with Coach Paul Sykes. Mr. Sykes has been with the school since 1937, and has always produced winning basketball teams. In his eleven years at Durham High School, he has piloted the Bulldog Cagers to nine Eastern conference titles and seven State Championships.

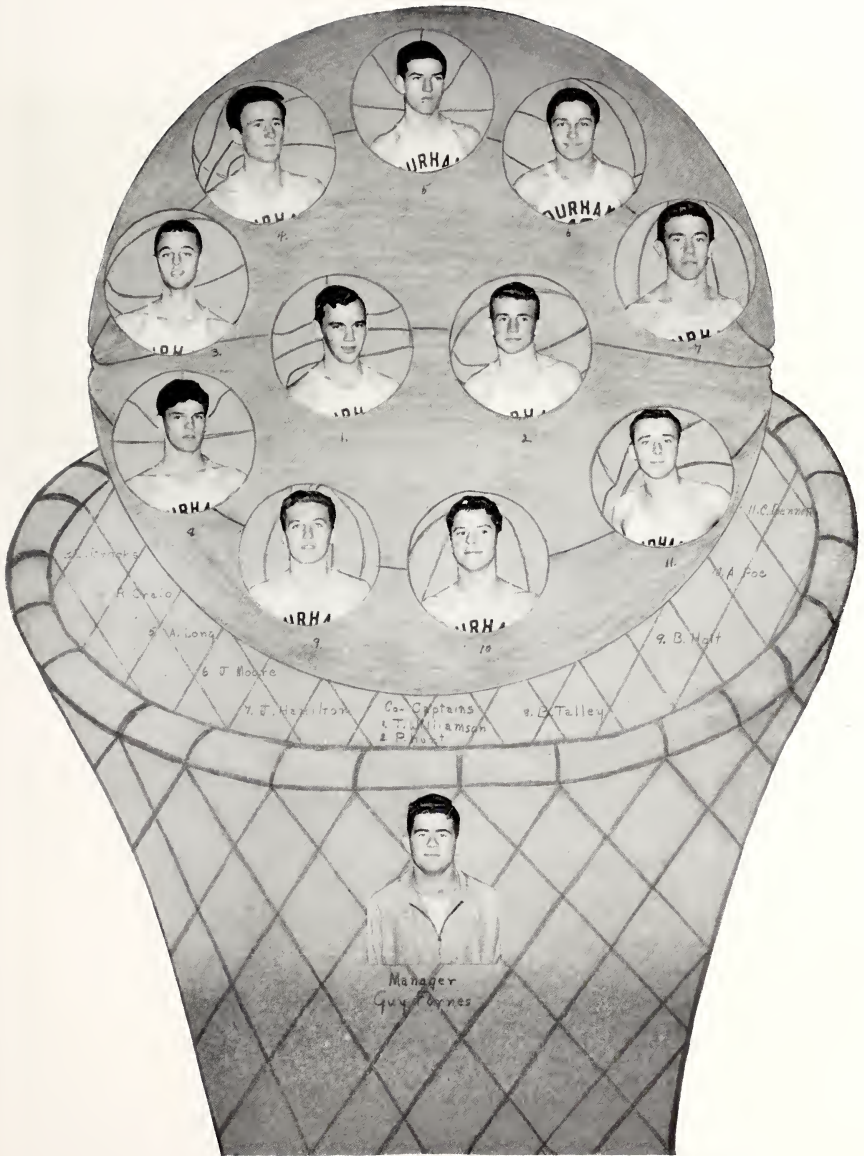

This season three Bulldogs made the all-

Eastern Conference second team. These were Albert Poe and Roger Craig, high scoring forwards, and Gene Brooks, lanky pivot man.

Closing the year, the Bulldogs entered two post-season affairs, the Mid-South High School Tournament in Greenville, South Carolina, and the North Carolina Championship Tournament at the Duke University Gym.

“Batter up!”

I could hear the shouts of the crowds and the crash of the bats against the balls, as the Bulldogs connected for numerous hits in the Durham Athletic Park, just one block away.

My boys were really in there! With the return of such letter men as Julius Moore, Troy Williamson, Albert Poe, Roger Craig, Jack Stallings, Brinson Canada, Bobby Talley, Delona Lloyd, Eugene Harris, Bruce Holt, Billy Check, and Elmo Gates, the Bulldogs couldn't help but win.

This year, Mr. Glenn W. Bunting assumed the coaching duties of the team, replacing Kelley Mote. Coach Bunting's complete interest in the team, was greatly responsible for the success of the outfit this spring.

Track

First row: T. Darkis, K. Anderson, J. Dennis, E. Ban-, G. Hood, M. Tsamas, W. Copeland, E. Andrews, W. Yarborough. Second row: R. Markham, Coach Neighborgall, J. B. Coddle, D. Hewing, R. Fisher, F. Townsend, B. Byrd, B. Hanes, D. Wolfe, M. Veasey, Coach Barbour.

Each spring brings another outstanding squad of trackmen with flashing style and form to the tracks of Durham High. From my lofty seat I watched last year's cindermen capture the only state championship won by any athletic team in Durham High that year. Each year brings new championships and words of praise for Durham High School, because of the track team. This group of boys was under the direction of Coach Paul Sykes and his assistants, Coach Elmer Barbour and Coach Roger Neighborgall. Bobby Poe, Gene Brooks, Ed McDonald, Mike Galifianakis, Julian Dennis, Russell Rogers, Duncan Nelson, W. B. Pate, and Bobby Byrd were point winners last year, and returned this past spring to form the nucleus of another great track team.

Tennis

TENNIS TEAM

As the spring sun shone down on my dome, it also shed its rays on the agile bodies of Durham High's tennis team. What a tan those boys gained along with their excellent record for fine players and good sportsmanship! This year there were three lettermen bequeathed to us from last year's racket-men: Duncan Nelson, Van Weatherspoon, and Harold Wheeler. Soon as the early practices were begun Coach Paul Sykes felt that the outlook was not bad at all for the Durham High netmen. We were proud that our boys could "hit 'em where they ain't" in tennis, too.

The tennis team included Jimmy Durham, Jerry Laws, Duncan Nelson, Van Weatherspoon, Harold Wheeler, Raymond Beal, and Bucky Gresham as Manager.

This spring's schedule was as follows:

Hearing the familiar "fore" coming from the direction of the Hillandale greens I knew that my Bulldog golfers were practicing for the stiff competition which they faced this spring.

The outlook for the '48 golf team was good indeed, when last year's lettermen Noble Arnold, Dante Germino, Vernon Suitt and Leon Tucker reported back for practice. Promising new-comers were Marius Suitt, Bob Bailey, and Fred Biggs.

The coaching duties of the team were held by Carey L. Brewbaker, who replaced Grady

Lyles of the Hillandale Club. The Bulldog linksmen closed out the season with an excellent record, having competed in six matches and also in the State tourney held in High Point.

Adviser: MISS NELL LEITNER

The objectives of this State-wide organization are to promote interest in girls' sports, competition in activities, good sportsmanship, as well as many other healthful habits. The club is advised by Miss Nell Leitner and the president is Kathryn Bullock. At the close of the school year the club, consisting of about forty members, had a banquet, at which the newly elected officers for the coming year were announced and the farewell speeches of the graduating officers were made. At the meetings of this club, readings were given on athletic events and on outstanding women athletes. The G.A.A., as it is usually referred to, has a point system based on the state adopted point system, which awards points to girls who take part in any types of sports. Any girl who had a record of twenty-five points was allowed to become a member, provided, of course, that she paid her dues.

OFFICERS—Lt. Director, D. Germino; Director, Mr. Enloe;
Captain, J. Heldman.

Crash! Bang! Boom! I thought to myself: "What is happening?" as I turned my eyes away from the usual peering position and saw the Durham High Band marching off. The color guard came first, next came the high-stepping majorettes and then—the band itself, clad in the bright maroon and white uniforms.

The band took part in many civic activities this year, and helped to keep up the grand old school spirit at the football games last fall. Under the direction of Mr. Lewis Enloe, the band has had a busy schedule this year. Truly, I believe that this, my own band, tops them all.

During the next six years, half a million teaching positions will be available in the United States. Thousands of men and women are needed to replace inadequately prepared teachers now in the schools, to fill the vacancies caused by normal turnover, and to meet the needs of the five million additional children born during wartime. There is a need for elementary and high school teachers, college instructors, principals, superintendents, and educational specialists of every kind.

Now you know the law of supply and demand. When your kind of training and ability are needed, offers for it are made more and more attractive.

That is what's happening in the teaching profession. An increasing number of states and communities are acting to improve teachers' salaries and working and living conditions.

The ability to teach is a special gift. If you enjoy working with children—make your decision now to join this honored profession. For "Our Teachers Mold Our Nation's Future," and America's future has need of you.
